Divine Mercy Sunday

[T]he message of divine mercy is also implicitly a message about the value of every human being. Each person is precious in God's eyes; Christ gave his life for each one; to everyone the Father gives his Spirit and offers intimacy.

Catholic healthcare and religious freedom government's past targeting of Catholics in healthcare at a hearing of the U.S. Religious Liberty Commission.

Bishop Robert Barron and Archbishop Salvatore Cordileone spoke out against the U.S.

Cordileone described the California Attorney General's lawsuit against Providence St. Joseph Hospital in Eureka for refusing to perform abortions and a lawsuit against a Catholic hospital in Sacramento that refused to perform a hysterectomy for the purposes of gender transition.

Also cited was the ongoing court battle of the Little Sisters of the Poor that began in 2011 when the government required employers to provide cost-free coverage for contraceptives, sterilizations, and "emergency birth control" under the Affordable Care Act (ACA).

Bishop Barron emphasized, "We've got to come forward in the public space. [I think] we've succumbed to the pressures from the secular ideology. We've got to keep articulating what the good is, because otherwise we won't know what love really is."

More attacks on Nigerian Christians

Nigerian Christians suffered deadly suspected jihadist attacks this time on Easter Sunday: direct attacks on Easter services, mass abductions, and indiscriminate firing on local victims. These attacks followed the Palm Sunday massacre of at least thirty people in the deadly Nigerian state of Plateau. Breitbart

*Set a guard over our priests, O Lord.
Watch over them day and night.
Keep evildoers far from them.
Protect them everywhere and always.
Amen.*
